France closes dozens of swimming pools over soaring energy costs

French sports and education groups have expressed outrage at the closure of around 30 swimming pools, as surging heating costs have made them no longer viable.

“These closures directly impact all children and adults who won’t be able to learn to swim,” the French Swimming Federation (FFN) said in a statement, demanding the pools’ “immediate” reopening.

Vert Marine, which operates pools and ice rinks across France, said Monday that its annual energy bill has jumped to 100 million euros from 15 million euros—a figure it said equals “the company’s entire annual revenue”.

For the company, “the government, as well as local authorities, has to make the right decisions to get back to acceptable energy costs”.

But local governments are themselves struggling to meet surging bills, which have doubled in some places, according to France Urbaine, a federation of large towns and cities.

Since pool closures during the coronavirus crisis, there have already been a generation of 800,000 school pupils who are unable to learn to swim.

Neither local authorities nor the sports ministry denies the importance of swimming as a way of preventing accidental drownings. “Balancing the books for private companies that manage some pools shouldn’t come before the public interest,” the physical education union SNEP said. Many of France’s pools and ice rinks are old, and the government has planned to set up a working group on saving energy to study them.

Les adjectifs

- Ils sont invariables (pas de S au pluriel) et se placent avant le nom.
- Voici l'ordre dans lequel placer les adjectifs lorsqu'il y en a plusieurs qui précèdent le nom :

Opinion + size + shape + temperature + age + colour + origin + material + usage
 + NOUN

Opinion	Size	Shape	Temperature	Age
Good, bad, interesting,	big, small, large, long	round, square	hot, cold, warm	young, old
Colour	Origin	Material	Usage	Noun
blue, pink, dark, light	French, Italian	cotton, woollen	riding, living	car, people

- Lorsque les adjectifs sont attributs (placés après les verbes d'état comme be), on met en général la conjonction “and” avant le dernier adjectif (It is a big and beautiful house).
- Certains adjectifs sont toujours attributs et se placent après le verbe.
Quelques exemples : afraid (effrayé), alive (en vie), awake (éveillé), aware (conscient), cross (en colère), ill (malade), glad (ravi).
Il faut recourir à leurs synonymes pour dire la même chose en utilisant un adjectif épithète. This girl is afraid est synonyme de A frightened girl.
- Avec un superlatif, il faut faire attention à bien placer l'adjectif avant le nom.
Ex. : C'est la voiture la plus rapide que j'ai jamais conduite : It is the fastest car I have ever driven.
- Les terminaisons les plus courantes des adjectifs :

-ate, -ant, -ous/ious, -al, -ing, -ed, -able, -ible, -ish, -ile, -y, -ic, -ical, -ial, -ory/ary, -wide, -free, -less, -ive, -ful, -like, -er, -est, -while, -esque.

Certains mots se terminant par « ly » sont des adjectifs et non des adverbes : Timely, early, hourly, daily, weekly, monthly, yearly, costly, silly, lovely, ugly, deadly, cowardly, lively, likely, unlikely, leisurely, manly, womanly, beastly, princely, scholarly, kingly, brotherly. Les termes weekly, daily, monthly, yearly sont adverbes quand ils sont en fin de phrase.

Les adjectifs et noms composés

- Les adjectifs composés (compound adjectives) désignent les adjectifs construits à partir de 2 mots distincts, voire plus.

Attention : ce n'est pas parce que plusieurs adjectifs s'enchaînent qu'ils forment un adjectif composé ! Avec un adjectif composé, les différents éléments le constituant forment une seule et même idée, tandis qu'un enchaînement d'adjectifs traduit plusieurs précisions différentes. Les adjectifs sont invariables, y compris dans le cas d'un adjectif composé. Ainsi, on dira: a twelve-year-old boy, sans "s" à "year".

- Les noms composés (compound nouns) : la première partie nous renseigne sur le type d'objet ou de personne ou sa fonction (nom + nom, nom + verbe, nom + adverbe, verbe + nom, verbe + adverbe, adjectif + nom, adjectif + verbe, adverbe + nom, adverbe + verbe). La deuxième partie identifie l'objet ou la personne en question (policeman, boyfriend, greenhouse, dry-cleaning, dining-table).

Adverbe + participe passé ou nom + ed	Adjectif + participe présent (verbe + ing)	Nom + participe passé
a well-known writer a brightly-lit room deeply-rooted traditions a well-mannered girl	a good-looking boy a free-standing tower	a tongue-tied boy a sun-dried fruit
Adjectif + participe passé ou nom + ed	Nom + adjectif	Adjectif + nom
a short-sighted man a long-haired lady	a world-famous singer	a last-minute solution deep-sea diving
Nom + nom
a part-time job

Voici quelques exemples de transformations :

1. A representative from the International Monetary Fund ➤ An International Monetary Fund representative
2. The month dedicated to the prevention of injury in childhood ➤ The childhood injury prevention month
3. Inequalities that have existed for a long time and are deeply rooted ➤ Long-lasting deeply-rooted inequalities
4. A budget which is based on the means rather than on the results ➤ A means-based rather than results-based budget.

Sound Supreme 4 review: tremendous noise-cancelling headphones

Supremely comfortable, feature-packed Bluetooth cans sound brilliant with 60-hour battery life.

They are equipped with effective noise-cancelling systems that can significantly reduce rumbles, fan and road noise, and do a reasonable job on higher-pitched tones such as voices or keyboard taps in an office.

If you want some high-end noise-cancelling headphones, the Supreme 4 are worth every penny.

With its fantastic sound, effective noise-cancelling, and 60-hour battery life, it is highly comfortable. Added to Bluetooth 5.2 with aptX Adaptive and multipoint, USB-C charging and audio, you will appreciate its great controls, top voice quality, and good cross-platform app. On the other hand, you might regret its less standout design than its predecessors and its high price.
