Sir Arthur Conan Doyle (1927) by Henry L. Gates.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, on 22 May 1859. When he was a young boy he liked reading books.

track 02

In 1876 he began studying medicine at Edinburgh University. One of his professors was Dr Joseph Bell. Dr Bell watched his patients closely so that he could understand their illness. Later Dr Bell became Conan Doyle's model for Sherlock Holmes.

In 1882 Conan Doyle became a doctor. He did not have many patients so he began writing his first Sherlock Holmes story, A Study in Scarlet (1887). The story was a big success.

In 1891 he wrote Sherlock Holmes stories for a monthly magazine called The Strand. Soon the clever detective and his friend Dr Watson became very popular in Great Britain. When Conan Doyle stopped writing Sherlock Holmes stories his readers got angry.

Finally in 1901 he started writing another Sherlock Holmes adventure called The Hound of the Baskervilles. A lot of other stories followed. His readers were very pleased and he continued writing about the famous detective until 1927.

Some famous Sherlock Holmes books are The Sign of Four (1890), The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes (1892), The Return of Sherlock Holmes (1905), The Valley of Fear (1915) and The Case-Book of Sherlock Holmes (1927). 'The Red Circle' is part of the book His Last Bow (1917).

Conan Doyle died in England on 7 July 1930.

Sherlock Holmes and Dr Watson

The story you are going to read takes place in London at the start of the twentieth century. It is about London's famous fictional detective, Sherlock Holmes and his good friend, Dr Watson. Dr Watson helps Holmes with his detective cases.

track 03

When Sherlock Holmes moved to London in 1874 he did not have much money and his family had to help him. In 1881 he decided to share the cost of his rooms at 221B Baker Street with Dr John H. Watson, and this is how Holmes and Watson became good friends.

André Morell as Dr Watson and Peter Cushing as Sherlock Holmes in the film The Hound of the Baskervilles (1959).

Watson tells us a lot of things about Holmes: he is not a difficult person to live with because he is quiet and has regular habits. For example, he usually goes to bed around ten at night and gets up very early in the morning. He works on his cases with a lot of energy, but sometimes he gets very bored and sits in the living room and does nothing.

Watson also tells us that he is untidy and his desk is always full of papers. Mrs Hudson is the housekeeper ¹ who tidies the rooms. We know that Holmes plays the violin and wears Persian slippers ² at home. He often uses chemistry equipment ³ to help him solve cases.

Holmes is an excellent detective and he often surprises Watson with his solutions to difficult cases.

CHAPTER ONE

Mrs Warren's Problem

‘Well, Mrs Warren, I’m sorry but I can’t help you. I have other things to do,’ said Sherlock Holmes, looking at the papers on his desk.

track 04

But Mrs Warren did not go away.

‘You helped my lodger ¹ Mr Hobbs last year,’ said Mrs Warren, looking at Holmes.

‘Yes, I remember,’ said Holmes.

‘Mr Hobbs said you are a kind, helpful man. Why can’t you help me?’ asked Mrs Warren.

Holmes looked at her and said, ‘Alright, Mrs Warren, tell me about your problem. I understand your new lodger always stays in his rooms and you never see him. There’s nothing strange about that!’

1. lodger : a person who rents a room in another person’s house.

Mrs Warren's Problem

‘But I’m really afraid and I can’t sleep,’ said Mrs Warren. ‘I hear his quick footsteps from morning to night, but I never see him. Why is he hiding? My husband is worried too, but he is away all day at work. I’m alone at home with the girl who helps me clean, and I’m very frightened.’

Holmes looked at her kindly and said, ‘Please sit down, Mrs Warren. Now if I decide to help you, I must know everything. Do you understand? The smallest thing can be the most important. You said that the man came ten days ago and paid you for two weeks. Is that correct?’

‘Yes,’ said Mrs Warren, ‘I asked him to pay two pounds a week for a small sitting-room and a bedroom at the top of the house.’

‘Well?’ asked Holmes.

‘He said, “I’ll pay you five pounds a week if I can have the rooms on my conditions.”²

I’m a poor woman, sir, and Mr Warren doesn’t make much money. I needed the extra money. The man gave me ten pounds and said, “I can give you ten pounds every two weeks for a long time on my conditions.”’

‘What were his conditions?’ asked Holmes.

‘Well, he wanted a key to the house and that was alright. Lodgers often want a key. And he did not want anyone to disturb³ him.’

‘There is nothing strange about that, Mrs Warren,’ said Holmes.

‘No, but I never see him – no one sees him! He only went out of the house on the first night.’

2. on my conditions : following the rules I give you.

3. disturb : (here) go into his rooms.

Sherlock Holmes and the Red Circle

‘Oh, he went out on the first night?’ asked Holmes.

‘Yes, sir, and he came back very late when we were all in bed,’ said Mrs Warren.

‘But, his meals?’ asked Holmes.

‘Oh, we leave his meals on a chair outside his room when he rings the bell,’ said Mrs Warren. ‘And he rings again when he finishes eating. If he wants anything, he writes it in capital letters on a piece of paper and leaves it on the chair.’

‘He writes in capital letters?’ asked Holmes.

‘Yes, sir, just the word in pencil, and nothing more,’ said Mrs Warren. ‘Look, here are the notes he writes. This one says SOAP. Here’s another one that says MATCH. ⁴ And this is one he wrote this morning – it says DAILY GAZETTE. I leave the newspaper with his breakfast every morning.’

Mrs Warren gave Holmes the two pieces of paper and he looked at them with interest.

‘Oh dear, Watson,’ said Holmes, ‘this is really a bit strange. Why does this man write in capital letters? It is much easier and quicker to write normally. What do you think, Watson?’

‘He probably doesn’t want Mrs Warren to see his handwriting,’ I said.

‘But why?’ asked Holmes. ‘Perhaps you’re right, Watson. But why are his messages so short? Why doesn’t he write in sentences?’

‘I really don’t know,’ I said.
